Love is lost in the Big Brother Canada Studios as Surrey, B.C.'s Matthew Wong, has been evicted, leaving behind his house flame, Toronto's Lexus Jackson, in another successful Season 12 backdoor plan. This week's HOH, Selkirk, Manitoba's Avery Martin, planned to make big game moves by beginning to eliminate the other side of the house. Avery chose to nominate North Bay's Elijah "Goose" Kazlauskas and Ottawa's Tola Eam for eviction, with Goose as her target for ruffling feathers during his HOH reign the previous week. When Tola won the POV and pulled himself off the block, HOH Avery did what was necessary to further her game, and named fellow "The Directors" alliance member, Matthew, as the replacement nominee. Both men campaigned hard, resulting in a drama-filled week, but ultimately Matthew said goodbye to his showmance, as he was evicted from the BBCAN Studios by a vote of 4 to 3.

"Obviously it hurts to see myself here, I wanted to go all the way, but I rode it out with my dogs, and I couldn't ask for a better group of people to be with and be by my side voting with me until the end." - Matthew Wong
